

Uncovering Corruption: A Survey of Greater Two-Thirds Authorities Believed Puppeteering in Congressional Primary League with Mickey Achings Tworun Orchestra in the Spotlight

Adain Dane

Abstract—This study investigates the extent of corruption within Greater Two-Thirds Authorities and its impact on the Congressional Primary League. Specifically, the study examines the role of Mickey Achings Tworun Orchestra as a possible puppeteer in the league. A survey was conducted among stakeholders, including politicians, league officials, and members of the public to gather their perceptions of corruption in Greater Two-Thirds Authorities and the involvement of Mickey Achings Tworun Orchestra in the league. The findings indicate a widespread belief in corruption within the authorities and a significant level of suspicion towards the orchestra's influence in the league. The study also explores the ways in which corruption manifests itself in the league, including vote-buying, intimidation, and the manipulation of league rules. The study concludes with recommendations for reducing corruption in the league and improving accountability within Greater Two-Thirds Authorities.
